INTRODUCTION

Parents and adults in the family have the great and responsible task of raising the representatives of the future generation as individuals with mature willpower in the family. Our country always pays attention and protects the family system at the level of state policy. Family life is one of the most important aspects of human life. For the same reason, the society's attitude towards laws and regulations is expressed in various interpersonal problems in the family, in communication, exchange of ideas, discussions, therefore, raising young people in the spirit of patriotism will help to strengthen the family, noble feelings of character in parental relations, high in the child. depends on the formation of spiritual feelings.

The high and responsible task of raising the young generation to become a perfect person in the family is assigned to parents and adults in the family.

Purpose: To shed light on the importance of family values in the formation of a child's personality.

ANALYSIS OF MATERIALS

The socio-psychological importance of the image of "I" in the family system is that it is one of the important factors of personal education and upbringing. From this point of view, it can be defined that education is the process of formation of a person's ideas about himself and his qualities. Therefore, the more clearly and correctly each person knows and imagines himself, the less likely he is to act against the norms of society, that is, he is educated. The process of self-awareness and evaluation of existing qualities is often difficult for a concrete person, that is, the nature of a person is such that he does not correspond to the norms of that society. tries not to understand the unpleasant qualities, to "hide" them, even such ideas and knowledge are pushed into the unconscious. (According to the theory of the Austrian scientist Z. Freud). This is not a deliberate act, it is a unique protection mechanism of each person's personality.

Family education - education of children in the family by parents, guardians or adults. It plays an important role in the all-round development of the young generation. A permanent educational influence in family education is mental calmness in the family, sincere attitude, high parental authority, maintaining unity between family adults in making demands on children, paying special attention to educating the child's personality to work, loving and honoring the child, strict regime and day in the family. It consists of establishing the order, taking into account the child's age and personal characteristics, monitoring the changes in the child, supporting his independence and initiative qualities. The more organized the family is, the more sincere the relationship between its members is, the more successful family education is. In family education, the reputation of parents, their observation, sensitivity, and responsiveness have an important educational value.

ANALYSIS AND RESULTS

In family education, the process of upbringing should not consist of boring, dry advice. Most of the child's life is spent in the family. Therefore, under the positive influence of existing traditions, customs, rituals and ceremonies, the child gradually matures. Tradition and ritual are powerful tools of family education. Expected results can be achieved only if family upbringing is in perfect connection with social upbringing. Achieving success in family upbringing also depends on parents having pedagogical knowledge, sharing experiences in family upbringing, and actively involving parents in educational activities. Every parent should deeply understand their duties and responsibilities in family education. A normal family environment, timely involvement of the child in reading and working is also a guarantee of the success of family education. Absence of a father or mother in the family or the departure of one of them greatly harms family education. The power of their educational influence on the child is lost, the balance in family upbringing is disturbed. In such conditions, the child's heart is seriously injured, he becomes angry, rude, distrustful of adults, and his studies decline. Father's reputation is very important in family education. It is impossible to achieve success in raising children to become well-rounded people without connecting the school with the family. Therefore, the joint educational work between the school and parents is of great importance in family education. The opinions expressed in the meetings of parents with teachers are especially valuable. Because they learn more about their children. Therefore, every parent who understands the essence of child education strives to strengthen the cooperation between the family and the school. Until the child graduates from school, parents should establish close contact with the school, master their child's lessons, be aware of their behavior, consult with the teacher and head of the class on educational issues, and inform the teacher and the head of the class about what the child is doing after school. On the other hand, the teacher and the head of the class should convey the information about the child's studies, manners, behavior, behavior at school to the parents, and solve the problems that arise when necessary. A parent whose child attends school must remain a member of the school community. The teacher and the head of the class should establish strong cooperation with the family of their student.

Conclusion: cooperation of parents with neighborhood activists and labor veterans is also important in family upbringing. Family upbringing can be successful only if favorable conditions are created for the development of children in all aspects. In family education, each family shows its own characteristics. One of the most important aspects in the formation of a child's personality is the educational values of each family and the adherence of each family member to them.
